RSV is a common respiratory virus that can cause serious illness in older adults, particularly those with underlying health conditions. With new vaccination recommendations and program developments emerging, it is essential that healthcare professionals remain up to date with the latest evidence, eligibility requirements, and practical implementation considerations.

This webinar will provide an overview of RSV disease burden in older Australians, current vaccine options, eligibility criteria, and key clinical considerations for supporting vaccine uptake.

Participants will also gain practical insights into communicating with patients about RSV, addressing common questions, and integrating RSV vaccination into routine preventive care.

Numbers are limited and registration is essential. This event is delivered live and is not recorded.
